SPECIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

TUESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 7, 1866.

A Strange Kind of Conversion.

Two or three years ago there existed a political party which expended all its energies in throwing obstacles in the way of a patriotic people who were clinging with unconquerable tenacity to the idea that the States which compose this Federal Union should not be separated. This party was fierce in its denunciations of loyalty, but not one word ever escaped it in condemnation of treason. The severest censure it could find for those who were endeavoring to disrupt the Union, was, that if they were in fault at all, they were "no worse than the Abolitionists who were prosecuting the unholy war against our brethren in the South." In those days Lincoln—as the estimation of this party—was as much a traitor as Jefferson Davis. But since then, this party has received new light, and now holds that Jefferson Davis was the exalted patriot, and Abraham Lincoln the unpardonable traitor. The New York Day Book presents the "conservative-Democratic" view of this matter in the following paragraph:

Jefferson Davis will go down to posterity as the champion of American civilization and defender of the system founded by Washington, and Abraham Lincoln, if not the greatest criminal that ever lived upon this earth, will only be saved from it by being regarded as the most fatal lunatic that ever afflicted mankind by his madness. The truth is, Mr Davis' friends, or indeed himself, never fully understood the greatness and extent of the cause he represented, and it may be that this generation will not do so. But just as fast as Americans get rid of the monstrous and colossal lunacy of Abolition, and comprehend that so-called slavery is the normal condition of the negro, they will understand that, however much he erred in the means Jefferson Davis sought to reach an end more just, beneficent and glorious than any other public man or leader since the days of Christ.

Without doubt these views have been indoctrinated into the Democratic party by a long observation of new plan of making treason odious. Secretary Seward would probably present attendances of this sort as evidence that the "Democratic party has been converted." It is with such "converted Democrats" as these who speak after the manner of the Day Book, that a few men who have heretofore stood high in the Union party now ask the friends of the dead Lincoln to associate. The wing of the Democracy to which Day Book belongs, comprises half the voters and nearly all the talent of the party. These men will appear in full force in the Philadelphia Convention, and will there be met on terms of political fellowship by those supporters of Lincoln whose services Johnson has purchased for the purposes of his new party. The masses of the Union party have not the sanguine disposition which Mr Seward possesses, and therefore prefer to think, with such proofs before them as these furnished above, that the evidences of the "conversion" of the Democratic party are not very clear. Doctrines like those enunciated by the Day Book will probably be considered orthodox at the Philadelphia convocation, but notwithstanding the recent attempts by men to high places to debauch the public mind, the people are hardly ready yet to believe with the Democracy, that "Jefferson Davis sought to reach an end more just, beneficent and glorious than any public man or leader since the days of Christ."

South Carolina at Philadelphia.

The Charleston News asks, "What State can take the initiative with better grace than South Carolina," in the movement to make the support of the new Bread and Butter party unanimous among the States lately in rebellion. Inasmuch as South Carolina took the initiative step in secession and treason against the Government, we do not know of any State which could so appropriately lead off in a movement to meet those who propose to surrender through the agency of politics, all that the South demanded at arms. Armed treason was simply a failure, and South Carolina, though not converted from the opinions of 1860-61, was glad to desist from war. Treason, to the cause for which our armies fought, now invites the rebel States to come into a common council with the Northern quasi traitors. South Carolina, losing treason as much as in 1861, hastens to avail herself of the invitation. She already has the lead among the Southern States, in acceptation of the "situation" as offered by the Philadelphia Convention. She will join with her sister States in the effort to save the Constitution which she so much revered in 1861, from being trodden under the ruthless heels of the Radicals. She will throw herself into the breach to resist the tendency of Radicalism toward usurpation and centralization, which she thinks so dangerous to Republican institutions. The element which South Carolina resisted for four years, between 1861 and 1865, is as dangerous to the peculiar views of South Carolina now as then, and she is awake to the policy of overthrowing it. Until the Philadelphia Convention was proposed, however, she saw no practical way to rescue. That Convention proposes a new party, founded upon tenets entirely acceptable to every man who resisted the radicalism of the rebellion period. South Carolina is quick to see the advantage to her of the success of that party, and with an exultation impossible to be concealed, calls upon the lately rebellious South to take an "earnest and active part" in this great movement "for the support of the President's policy and the reconstruction of the Union on liberal and constitutional principles." South Carolina sees in the movement a chance to save the country from the "mad mistrule which is so rapidly hurrying the nation to destruction." Careful as she has always been of the national unity, jealous as she has always been of the national honor; solicitous as she has always been to promote the closest bonds of affection between the several States, obedient as she has always been to the Constitution and laws, faithful as she has always been to the compact which made the Union; devoted as she has always been to the fundamental idea of republicanism, South Carolina welcomes the Philadelphia movement as one which none could more appropriately enter first, than herself. In view of A. H. Stephens' statement that the South had formed no new belief since the war began except that it is not strong enough to achieve independence, the joyful readiness with which the Southern hails the Philadelphia Convention, should satisfy everybody that the proper place of South Carolina, the mother of sedition, is in the front rank of the movement.

The Jacksonville Sentinel has fallen from its "posish" on the Tyler Mason Johnson programme. So they go. The fact is, nobody but an enemy of the noble old Union party which nobly preserved the Union, can or will follow the Recreant Tribune. The last prop of the ingrate Mayo, among his former supporters on this coast, may be said to have fallen away. It was apparent from the first that this would happen. Johnson is left, now, to the tender mercies of the Copperheads only. The Sentinel says:

> Let no Union man deceive himself with regard to the construction and objects of the new party. It matters not that Seward, Johnson, and some other prominent men in the Union party, are prime movers of the forthcoming organization. Theirs is the last expiring struggle of old fogyism against the repeated verdicts of a patriotic and intelligent people. With the immense advantages of the whole Federal patronage for their side, they have failed in every instance to obtain a shadow of support in any State election, or in the return of United States Senators. The veto power has ceased to be an effectual bar to the will of the people and those men are about to gather their forces together and form an alliance with those who have been their political enemies. We will part with Mr Seward as we would part with an old garment that had served us well while in fashion and with the conversion that his peculiar statesmanship is far behind this progressive age. We will yield Mr Johnson to the Democracy cheerfully, and feel satisfied that he rightfully belongs there. It is idle for any man to deny that the main object of the new party is the reinstatement of the Democracy in power. The mountain would not come to Mahomet therefore Mahomet was forced to go to the mountain.

The Mineral Lands Bill, which passed the Senate some weeks ago, lately passed the House without amendment or change. The bill was published in this paper several days ago.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO AUGUST 4.

Details of the New Orleans Riot.

CHICAGO, Aug 4—The New York Times correspondence of New Orleans writes of Monday: I have already forwarded a pun ber of disconnected dispatches relative to to-day's fearful carnage, and now propose to give you a more connected account. I only write what I can substantiate on the best authority. The Convention met at twelve o'clock, 26 members being present. Judge H. R. Howell (since missing) in the chair. Judge Butler, also missing, moved an adjournment of the body during which time the Sergeant at Arms was directed to compel the attendance of absentees. The house was densely packed with freedmen and just after the adjournment a procession containing United States flags and marching through the streets with martial music, arrived at the Institute having at a slight distance on Canal street, for the purpose of creating a disturbance. The city, fearing the coming riot, closed their stores. When the procession entered the building a squad of police followed and attempted to make arrests. A scene of the wildest confusion followed. Pistols were fired, clubs and canes were used, and brickbats flew in every direction. The Policemen clubbed it at they were only attempting to arrest the Canal street rasters, above mentioned, but certain it is, they mounted the platform where a small body of the members remained, and one of them presented a pistol upon their using offensive language. The policemen were finally driven out of the hall by leaving Gov. [Hahn], Judge Howell and other gentlemen, with Mr Clark, attached to the State government, besides about fifty freedmen. Fortunately for us this had just left the building for the purpose of consulting with Gen Baird about calling out troops. Gen. Sheridan being out of town. The institution used now as the State Capitol is located in Dryade street, between Canal and Common, and when the policemen were driven out, they were met by a large body of freedmen, who crowded them to fall back to Canal street. They rallied and drove the freedmen back to Common street, and in turn were driven back to Canal street, leaving Dryade street perfectly clear of any vestige of humanity except the bodies of three dead freedmen. Up to this time one police officer had been mortally wounded, one severely, and others slightly hurt with clubs and pistols. Police reinforcements very soon appeared in Canal street, and the crowd of rioters accompanying the police, approached the Institute and commenced throwing stones through the windows and firing pistols at any one they could see inside the building. At the same time a detachment of police attacked the crowd of freedmen on Common street, and after dispersing and wounding several blacks they drove them away, giving the police and mob which accompanied them full control of Dryade street. A fire engine was brought out and played on the front of the institute, for what purpose I do not know. Several attempts were made by the police to enter the building but they were repulsed. The ammunition of the men in the institute seemed to give out at this time, as they did not fire any more, and they attempted to escape through the rear of the institute into Barrowe street, but were met and either arrested or shot down. They also attempted to escape through the alley which runs from Dryade street to Barrowe on the Canal street side. I dont know that any freedmen succeeded in getting away from the building alive, although I saw several at a considerable distance from it, being marched to police headquarters. I think that every one that tried to escape from it was killed. I saw several brought into the alley above mentioned, and after they fell I saw crowds of ruffians beating them as they were dying. The policemen, whatever their orders, behaved well toward the white prisoners, comparatively speaking. A. M. Fisk was the first member of the convention captured, and I am happy to say that although the police could not prevent the crowd from abusing him badly, they did keep him from being lynched. As Fisk was being carried under guard they got a rope ready to hang him but the guard drove the crowd away with their pistols. The next member arrested was Capt. Raynes, a Texas scout for our army during the war. The crowd had been taught a lesson and did not interfere with him although they grumbled deeply as he passed through, calling them "rebels," "traitors," and other pet names. Governor Hahn succeeded in getting into the Institute the police valuables of the building where he had been, but not as a member, but as one of the most prominent men in the State. While he was under guard, however, some coward shot him through the back of his head, inflicting a dangerous wound, and he was also stabbed when placed in a hack and carried to police headquarters, where I saw him into confinement. He was very pale, and blood ran down his face from the wound which seemed to have reached his left temple. Mr Monte, who had the reputation of being the most violent negro suffrage man in the South, and who certainly was most violent in February last, was killed while attempting to get away. It is said that a policeman shot him in the back, and after he fell the crowd jumped on him and cut him horribly with knives. John Henderson and other members of the Convention were also hurt and wounded by stray shots, as the papers say, but more likely by the man while on their way to the station house. The riot commenced at 12:15 and ended at 3 o'clock. At 4 P M the military, under General Baird, appeared and took possession of the whole city before night. The riot was confined to Dryade, Barrowe, Common, Carondelet and Canal streets, and the buildings and yards all around the common. I saw freedmen shot dead on all of the above streets, except Canal who could have been reached uninjured. How many have been killed, wounded, or even arrested, it is impossible to say, but is estimated at one hundred freedmen and twenty-five whites killed and wounded, and one hundred altogether, arrested. The substantial men of the city deplore the occurrence, but all are violent in their expressions, some glorying in the murder of Monte, and others in the manner of the killing.

CHICAGO, August 4—The Cincinnati Commercial's correspondent telegraphs from New Orleans on the 3d, that there have been no riots of any importance, although minor difficulties are constantly occurring. Too much blame has been laid on Negroes by Southern papers in the special police force who will bear the blame. At first a full movement of officers could not be got through, as the rebels carefully guarding the telegraph office. This unhappy condition of political affairs exists everywhere throughout Louisiana. The rapid enforcement of the civil rights law by Commissioner Shannon, whom Judge Abell attempted to remove a few weeks ago, when he was placed under arrest by Gen. Sheridan, caused deep ill feeling and the call of the Convention prevailed. It is said, as soon as it was known that the President would sustain the courts, Judge Abell having already declared on the bench that the members should be arrested. Louisiana is ripe for war or reconstruction.

The Effect of the President's Influence.

CHICAGO, August 4—The New York Commercial Advertiser says the course of the President in connection with the outbreak at New Orleans cannot certainly meet with approval at the North. The result shows his reply to the Lieutenant Governor, that the Courts should be sustained by the military, was interpreted by the enemies of the convention as an invitation to go forward and break it up. His now, after learning the details of the riot, telegraphs, not to the Governor but to the Attorney General of the State, to use sufficient force to sustain the civil authorities in suppressing all illegal or unlawful assemblies whose object or purpose is to exercise any power of authority without first having obtained the consent of the people of the State. Nothing is said about suppressing the angry mob who were having control of the city; but what will strike the reader as most significant in this dispatch is the manner in which the criticisms of the Governor is ignored. The fact that President Johnson now allows the military to interfere in the case of the New Orleans Convention is not calculated to soothe the enemies of his policy when they recollect that he refused such assistance when asked by Governor Brownlow although thousands of lives in the case of the Nashville Legislature. If his reconstruction policy has any virtue or force whatever, than Mr. Johnson has no right to interfere in one case more than another.

Attempts to Procure the Removal of Secretary McCulloch.

WASHINGTON, Aug 4—Rumors have been circulating for several days that attempts were being made to cause the removal of Secretary McCulloch, and it is now pretty well understood that the movement dates from Wall street, and is based on purely financial grounds. No cause of his unfitness is mentioned, and indeed a successor is hardly available.

Employment of Indian Scouts.

The Secretary of War has received orders for the mustering of one thousand Indian Scouts, namely, 600 on the plains and 200 each on the Pacific coast and in Texas.

New York Markets.

NEW YORK, Aug 4—The Evening Post's money article says, money continues abundant. Government securities are firmer. Cotton is without decided change—Sales for middling uplands. Flour dull at 25c lower, closing heavy.

Foreign News.

HALIFAX, Aug 4—The Steamer Moravian has arrived with dates to the 27th of July. It was stated in London that the armistice between Prussia and Austria will probably be renewed, but there is no intimation of this having been done. Previous to the armistice the Italians were successful in South Tyrol.

The British Government has announced its intention of removing suspension of writ of habeas corpus in Ireland. Notice has been given that the Government has agreed with the Council of the Reform League to facilitate in every way their obtaining a speedy decision under the law as to their rights to hold public meetings in Hyde Park, and until it has been decided, no further meetings will be held except one in the afternoon of the 30th. This statement however, is contradicted in a letter from Mr Walpole, who states no promise was made, and that no permission was given, but that the Government promised to withdraw the police and military under the express stipulation that no attempt would be made to insist on the supposed right to hold meetings until the legal questions had been decided.

The Star, Telegraph and Advertiser represent the step taken by the Home Secretary as a compromise and a partial discomfiture.

In relation to the war, the Times says that the armistice did not come a moment too soon to save Austria from a final catastrophe. Yet one day more and the Italians would have found themselves in full possession of Southern Tyrol and the Prussian masters of the passage of the Danube, would have threatened Vienna on the east and west. The combatants are now resting on their respective positions, and there are well grounded hopes that the truce may be prolonged into an armistice, and this into definite peace. On the 26th a suspension of hostilities for eight days was concluded between the Italians and Austrians.

Have you noticed the rapid concession of the English press to German unity? That poisoned gift of Venetia has worked remarkably well. France lung out all her flags, and placarded the results in large letters to show the grand position of the Emperor, but the people of all Germany have been their disgust at the idea of a French protectorate, and Bismarck has become stronger than ever, so that he has defined the programme with [illegible] and submitted his own.

WASHINGTON, August 4.—A London letter says of the attitude of the European potentates the actual question is "will Austria consent to resign all power all right in Germany, and leave Prussia the supreme control of forty millions of Germans? Consenting to this, Austria may have peace with the empire of thirty-five millions of people. If she will not consent then Prussia will endeavor to excite a revolt in Hungary, and will do her best to blot Austria from the map of Europe.

The Emperor of France, a few weeks ago, insisted up on Austria being massacred as a German Power. Now he appears to have revoked that part of his programme and urges Austria to accept the terms of peace offered by Prussia and Italy. Russia, also which a few weeks ago seemed to sympathize with Austria, has become friendly to Prussia, and last night in the British House of Commons there was a regular glorification over Count Bismarck and the successes of the Prussian army. Three months ago there was scarcely one to take the side of Prussia. There is evidently great confusion at Vienna and they are so hotly pressed they cannot get time to deliberate calmly.

THE NEW COUNTY COURT HOUSE.—As this new temple of Themis was formally dedicated yesterday, by the holding of both Circuit and County Courts, the present may be the most fitting time in which to give the public a detailed description of the building. The plans from which it was erected were drawn by Mr. R. M. Burton, of this city, and the work of construction done by Messrs Goodenough & Clark, also of this city. The material used, as well as the workmanship displayed by the builders, make the structure one of the very best on the Pacific coast, and its style and dimensions as well be seen, compare very favorably with any similar building in the country. The principal building is 51 feet 6 inches front, by 100 feet 2 inches in length, including the rustic corners, which project 2½ inches from the face of the wall. Fifteen feet and 4 inches back from the front, a wing projects on either side 15 feet from the principal building each wing being 40 feet 6 inches in width, making the entire front, from wing to wing, 87 feet 6 inches. The building stands 106 feet high from the surface of the ground to the top of the dome. The basement story is 10 feet high in the clear; the first story above the basement is 14 feet in the clear; the second story, for the Circuit Court room, is 24 feet in the clear, and the ceiling of the dome is 58 feet above the ceiling of the Circuit Court room. The basement walls are of the best Oregon rock dressed in the finest, and laid in the best Santa Cruz lime and Eastern cement the cut side facings being stone, neatly cut in blocks and dressed above the ground. Above the basement the walls are of brick. The front entrance is of most cut stone, the pillasters, door head, transom and key stone, which bears the legend of "Equal Justice," being of the same material. The plaster in front is elevated upon two sides with stone, the outside being of the same style of finish as the basement walls above the ground. There is a rear entrance both from the main floor, and on either side of the main building, from the Circuit Court room—by winding staircases, and balcony leading from the witness and jury rooms. The exterior is neatly finished with paint and sanded, except the sash, doors, stairs, etc., which are stained or grained to conform to a fine appearance. The basement (so far as comes inside of the main building and the wings, at the front) has nine rooms, as follows: Jailor's office, 12 feet by 9, sitting room and bed room, 15½ feet by 17 feet each, dining-room, 15½ by 17 feet, kitchen 16 feet 4 inches by 17 feet, store room and coal room, each, 11 by 15½ feet. Entrance and corridor, 12 feet 9 inches by 20 feet. A furnace, or heating apparatus, is set in the basement, in a brick wall, connecting with cold air channels, and has not air pipes leading to all the rooms of the building which require to be heated, where registers of proper size are inserted in the floors. These pipes are of heavy tin. We may as well also state in this connection that each room in the building is supplied with gas, water and ventilations, according to the size of the room. The prison portion of the building is located in the basement of the main building, and consists of seven cells, three which by itself will be 10 feet in size, and four are of about all with concrete floors. Water closets are arranged in every department for convenience. The walls are massive and the doors, bolts, etc., are so secure as to render escape but little hope of escape, when once lodged there. On the principal floor we find the County Clerk, a business office and private office, with vaults etc., on the left side of the hall. Opposite is the Sheriff's office, similarly arranged. Next, the County Treasurer's office Surveyor's office, County Judge's office, court room, 35 by 18 feet in size, and witness and jury rooms. A main hall leads 16 feet through the second story, from front to rear, which is, in part, 12 feet wide. The entrance is 4½ feet by 12 feet in size, on either side of which is a flight of winding stairs, built of fine yellow fir, finished in oak and clear cedar, leading to third floor, where is hall 10 by 16 feet, divided by an opening 8 by 10 feet, with massive doors, leads to the finest part of the building, the Circuit Court room, which is 45 by 88 feet in size, having two rooms on each side for the purposes of Juries and witnesses. This room is finely furnished. Back of the Judge's bench the wall is neatly molded, turning an arch twelve feet high over the top, with carved capes and pedestals. The Bar occupies 26 by 48 feet of the space, inside of which are the jury seats, witness stands, clerk's desk, and tables and seats for members of the Bar. Outside of the bar are 68 seats, capable of accommodating with perfect comfort 600 persons. Ascending a long staircase which leads above the ceiling of the court room, and a shorter flight of steps takes one to the balustrade around the base of the cupola. Here is found ample space for walking around the outer cupola, and the view presented is truly grand. Having now passed entirely through the magnificent structure, the city and surrounding country appears all the more beautiful, and in case you are inclined to indulge in tropical meanings you can do so this time carefully, as nothing that what you see before you is all paid for. Here is a city of no insignificant proportions, out of debt. And here is a most creditable building for the ... of Multnomah, costing $90,000, and paid for when completed. As the Bulletin correspondent once remarked, an example of "pay as you go" which he begged to recommend to the debt-ridden and ... of California, who sometimes smear at Oregon ...

NEW BOOK.—Dr John F Geary, of San Francisco, has sent us a pamphlet with the following title "Epidemic Cholera: its modes of ... ment; their Respective Results; with Directions for Prevention, and what to do in cases of Sudden Emergency. By John F. Geary, M D., San Francisco. H. H. Bancroft & Co., 1866." We agree with the title that this pamphlet is written, and for the ... of telling people how cholera can be cured, but ... in the ... of regularly educated physicians. The author claims, by implication, to be one of that class. We do not know that he recognizes any other person in San Francisco belonging to that class, nor does it matter. The publication is virtually an invitation for ... patients to go to Dr. Geary if they want to be saved in this world. He gives the results of allopathic treatment in cholera, but does not set forth the ... possible mode. He has given us 50 pages of trash, and in that space he might have explained his mode of cure, so that every well educated allopathic physician in the State could have studied, examined and tried it. If homœopathy may be the means of saving thousands of lives in cases of a visitation by cholera, why should he not do his best to let people know how the cure may be effected? This trick of claiming the possession of a wonderful secret—that is, a secret at least so far as the familiar knowledge of most physicians is concerned—will not be the means of attracting confidence. The allopathic tell their remedies in brief newspaper articles; why should homœopaths not do as much in ... pamphlets? If anybody buys this pamphlet to learn the ... treatment of ... cholera ... need on the title page, he will waste his money.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—The public schools of this city opened yesterday under as favorable circumstances as the large attendance will ... There were 297 scholars reported at the Central building. This number is quite in excess of the working proportion for the advantage of both teachers and pupils. We trust that the First Ward will soon have a proper building upon the new block recently purchased for school purposes.

UNITED STATES COURT ROOMS.—The United States have taken a new lease of the old rooms for Court purposes in this district, in Stark's block on Front street in this city. This being the last will account for the repairing, cleaning, and fixing over of the quarters of Judge M P Deady, which are now very ... The next term of the Circuit Court will be commenced on the first Monday in September.

COUNTY COURT.—P A. Marquam Judge. Monday, August 6th, 1866. In the matter of the estate of T... R. By ..., will was admitted to Probate, and Wm. Cree appointed administrator.....Israel Graden vs. John J Sigel, defendant. Judgment by default for $... Court adjourned to meet at 10 o'clock A. M. today.

COUNTY COURT.—E. D. Shattuck Judge. Monday, Aug 6th, 1866. Lewis Endicott vs. Smith Fulmore, W Ham, A. Gwin, and W. B Crane. Judgment against Smith Fulmore for $1,424 coin. Case continued as to other defendants. Time granted until next term of Court for service.

PETTY SUITS.—Observing several well dressed gentlemen on the streets of our city yesterday, in styles quite new here, we learned upon inquiry that the clothing was purchased at Barman Bros who now receive the latest styles by every steamer. The suits are called 'Persian Suits," and are very fine woolen goods.

MUSIC AND ART.—Messrs Shattuck & Dufrene have something to say to the public, in another column. They are always pleased to have gentlemen and ladies call upon them, and there is always something interesting to be seen at their music and art gallery. It is really one of the most attractive places on the coast.

SURPRISE.—The friends of Rev B. C Lippincott and family tendered them a very pleasant surprise last evening at the Lincoln house, on the occasion of their departure to-day by the steamer Oriflot for the East. A purse of over $150 was made up on the spot and presented to him. The party was a pleasant one.

AUCTION SALES.—A sale of valuable real and personal property took place at Couch's wharf yesterday afternoon. Chief engineer Bulger of the steamer Oriflot, was the purchaser of the heaviest portion of the property offered.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL.—Capt J M Keeler, of Salem has received the appointment of United States Marshal for this District, we understand, since Wm. H Bennett resigned.

BARGAINS WANTED.—The Oregon Iron Company of Oregon wish to engage a quantity of the best quality of charcoal. See advertisement of Mr Belden.

James R Doolittle has acquired considerable notoriety at last. Any inconsequential person could become notorious by the means with which Doolittle has been brought so prominently into public notice. He owes all his suddenly acquired fame to the fact that he has consented to be thrown by the new party managers as a sprat to catch the Democratic whale. The gnat is an insignificant insect, but in the fable which relates how it alighted on the horn of the bull, it swells into the importance of Taurus himself.

FREEDMEN'S BUREAU.—A Galveston dispatch of July 7th, says

Generals Steadman and Fullerton, who have been engaged taking testimony in relation to the management of the Freedmen's Bureau, have finished their labors. General Steadman publicly remarked that the Bureau in Texas has been and is well conducted, and requires no further investigation.

GENERAL GRANT AND THE SOUTH.—General Grant is of opinion that there should be from 12,000 to 15,000 cavalry stationed over the South, to preserve peace among the reconstructed and protect Union men.

Colonel Forney to Andrew Johnson

A STINGING REBUKE TO THE PRESIDENT

The Philadelphia Press, Forney's paper published the following from that gentleman to the President, which will be found most interesting reading

WASHINGTON, D C, July 2, 1866

To Andrew Johnson, President of the United States—My Dear Sir Understanding that you are anxious to disclose certain private letters of mine, written to you before and since you became President by the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, and also that you are troubled with some delicate doubts as to the exact propriety of publishing them, I here invite you to print them in one or all of your four organs at the National Capital or through a more convenient medium, the Club or Committee representing the "Bread and Butter Brigade." These letters were written without the slightest concealment, and without the slightest suspicion that you were about to betray the party that had placed you where you are There is a charming consistency between the conscientious promptings that constrained you to separate from that great party, and the spirit which now impels you to reveal to the world your private relations with those who still adhere to that organization, and although the practice is somewhat novel, it will serve to shed a rich light upon the pages of the historian when he comes to describe your grateful and virtuous administration. The following letter, long threatened by your organs, is at last given to the world, and I reprint it as well for the purpose of acknowledging it as for the purpose of making some comment upon it:

"NEW YORK, Jan 2, 1866.

"My Dear Mr. President: I have been in this city two days, and now write under an impulse which I cannot restrain, because I feel it to be for your good and that of the country I take it for granted you are resolved not to be unmindful of your own fame and that you will not allow your friends, who heartily sustain your policy, to feel that they are without your aid and encouragement Whether you are a candidate for President or not—and if not I shall be greatly surprised, with the wonderful favor that has crowned your restoration policy—you should not allow the great offices to go to ingificent men, or those clearly in the interest of your foes I need not repeat to you that I am now, as ever, for twenty years shown in my writings, and since your great act of patriotism in 1859 especially, your open and avowed friend Where I am to-day my two newspapers both daily show to the world. Hence, in what I now say, I spend no idle words, but mean all I say. The Collector's office at New York City is a post that you should dispose of outside of all politicians, not, I mean, to defy them, but to select your own man, who should be free only to help you and serve the Government—one they could neither attack nor use Such a man is * * * * of this city. He was elected to Congress in * * * * as a Democrat, but, like you, refused to follow the party into treason He served a short term with great distinction and resigned on account of ill health. He was a member of the Committee on Ways and Means and won great applause. He is a very able man, educated to finance, intensely practical, honest and independent, and could furnish millions of security. He has an organizing mind, would make you a party, or fight your battles single handed He is an Andrew Johnson Democrat, in short. I write to the knowledge that he would accept, and that his appointment would be hailed with joy by this whole community.

J. W. FORNEY."

When this letter was written there was scarcely a Union Republican in the United States who did believe that your restoration policy included impartial suffrage to the colored race, full guarantees before the return of the rebels, and such change in the basis of representation as would prevent the murderers of American liberty from resuming their former power. The only real difference between you and radicals was whether the rebellion destroyed the State organization or not. I write with the files of the Washington Chronicle before me, and find that two days after the above letter was written Trumbull's two bills for "the enlargement of the powers of the Freedmen's Bureau" and the other, "for the protection of civil rights," were introduced into the Senate in the full expectation that they would receive your sanction. It was only when the Copperhead traitorous organs here and elsewhere began to speak as if by your authority, against the Union majorities in Congress, that the suspicion of the treason, subsequently indicated in your veto of the Freedmen's Bureau bill, and your disgusting 22d of February speech, began to pervade and finally possess the loyal mind of the country! So fixed was the belief of the Republican party that you could under no circumstances co-operate with your slanderers and theirs, and so willing were they to overlook your suspicious indifference previous to the coming elections in the States of Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, that at the period when I wrote the above letter, hundreds of thousands cheerfully recognized you as their political leader, and supposed you intended to stand firmly by the substantial principles of their organization. My own conviction was so strong upon the subject that I need only to refer to the pages of the Chronicle and the Press to prove how steadily I resisted the idea that you were plotting to betray your friends, and how vain by I endeavored to convince the country that you had no sympathy with the common enemy. In all my visits to the President's mansion, and they were frequent, it was not until late in January that I began clearly to perceive you were conspiring with the Copperheads and traitors Before that time not a word had ever fallen from your lips to create the suspicion that you were preparing to become the persecutor of the colored race, or that you were prepared to bring back into full power the red handed traitors whom you had so bitterly denounced during four long years. But when, with an unexpected shock, I can never forget or faithfully describe, these facts appeared too plain for doubt, I frankly discharged my duty, regardless and fully prepared for all the consequences I did not stop to calculate whether, in denouncing the dangerous conspiracy of which you were the chief, I was helping or harming the distinguished gentleman in whose behalf I wrote the above letter.

And now, sir, a word in reference to your personal affairs. I know right well the difficulty, if not the danger, of the position I occupy. I know that for firmly holding you to your pledges I am assailed and threatened by every Copperhead and traitor between Maine and Mexico, and I know also that, stimulated by the passions that have controlled you since you broke away from those pledges, there is nothing that you would not resort to to demoralize the party that elected you, and ruin those who refuse to follow you into the ranks of the common enemy. It is not the first time I have been thrown into conflict with a faithless and corrupt Executive; but it is the first time I have ever been called upon to organize and to expose such perfidy as yours. I will not remind you of my earnest and unexaggerating friendship, from the period when you took issue with treason in the Senate, in 1860, down to the Baltimore Convention, in 1864, which body, at the request of the lamented Lincoln and such earnest radicals as Benjamin F. Wade, of Ohio, I attended alone for the purpose of presenting your nomination for the Vice Presidency, after it became apparent that Hannibal Hamlin, the incorruptible patriot, was willing to give way in order to allow a representative of the War Democracy a position upon the national ticket. That you should have forgotten these facts amounts to nothing in comparison with your heartless ingratitude to the party which placed you in nomination and elected you Vice President. Individual ingratitude and cruelty concern only the person betrayed and injured; but when, as in your case, the betrayal of the whole country is contemplated, the offense becomes national, and should be accordingly checked and counteracted

There is, however, one part of your experience which deserves to be differently considered, especially in view of the new system of revenge you have adopted, viz that of publishing the private letters of gentlemen who refuse to sustain your attempt to make loyalty odious and treason honorable Need I tell you that I allude to the disgraceful 4th of March, 1865? When you resolved to desert the brave and benevolent men who threw over you the cloak of their forgiveness and charity on that day, you consciously or unconsciously prepared for every succeeding treachery. When you obtained your own consent to do that single act of shame, your in trigues with the Copperheads before the fall elections of 1865, your veto of the Freedmen's Bureau bill, after having almost explicitly promised to sign it, your revolting 22d of February speech, your proscription of the brave white and colored loyalists of the South, and your publication of private letters written to you in unsuspecting confidence, followed naturally and irresistibly Supposing that any other gentleman could have been guilty as you were guilty on the 4th of March, 1865, what would such a gentleman have done? You stood before your own country and the world dishonored and degraded

The ordinary calumnies of the Copperheads and traitors were coined into the most frightful maledictions against you. I know of no scene in history where a public character, for an act of inexorable weakness, was at the same time so universally execrated by one party, and so indulgently and magnanimously treated by another Any true man, equally unfortunate and equally forgiven and defended, would have turned to the Republican Union party and have said "For this act of noble clemency I am bound to you through life and unto death, that which you have done this day places me under obligations from which I can never escape, and which I shall forever cherish I feel that I have disgraced and dishonored myself, and by a little gratitude I will prove that, although unworthy of your confidence, I can at least do my best to atone for my offense" But as you seem to be made of different metal from such a character, you have not only coolly forgotten the generous men who saved you from disgrace, but are now engaged in the pleasant pastime of slandering them and proscribing their friends, I will postpone a description of my own part in that sad drama, preferring to wait for the other private revelations you promise to lay before the country. It is very certain that, if you have forgotten all shame, you cannot have forgotten my connection with yourself during that unhappy experience Probably no more graphic and instructive page could be added to the curious history of your Administration than a detailed account of that celebrated day I have not been as careful in treasuring all the incidents as you have been in preserving the private letters of the gentlemen whom you intended to betray, but where my own memory fails I shall be able to eke out a complete narrative by turning to the copious and fascinating columns of those traitor and Copperhead newspapers which are now defending your character and your conduct J W FORNEY

The Burning of the Ship "Hornet"—Terrible Sufferings of the Crew

The Honolulu Advertiser gives a long and interesting account of the burning of the ship Hornet and the subsequent sufferings of the passengers and crew As it contains many particulars not before published, we give some extracts

After reaching longitude 117 west, and latitude 17 north, Capt Mitchel decided to head for "American Group," located, according to Bow ditch, in latitude 17 north, longitude 133 30 west. The boat spent several days cruising over the position, but found no signs of land. Thus far they had endeavored to keep in the usual track of California bound clippers, in hope of meeting a passing sail But failing to find land here, they headed for Hawaii, distant 1,200 miles.

At this time they had no meat, and nothing to eat but the bare bones of the ham and the canvas it was rolled in, with their regular two gills of water Pieces of this canvas and the staves of a butter keg, which had a saline relish to them, served as the main stand by, while the leather of their boots was scraped off, soaked in water so as to make the leather soft This served as their soup For dessert, they ate pieces of cotton shirts and handkerchiefs By some accident there was a supply of tobacco in the boat, which served to allay their thirst, and may have been a principal means of preserving their lives During the entire passage, the utmost discipline prevailed, with watches off and on, as regularly as on the ship The boat leaked badly, and all hands took turns bailing to keep her afloat. With the strong trade winds, heavy seas and squalls, blowing at times almost a gale, this was no light work.

On the thirty-eighth day, four flying-fish kindly flew into the boat. These were stored, and divided into fifteen equal parts, and each ate his share raw The next day another flying fish came aboard, which was also divided into fifteen pieces and divided around On the fortieth day a very small fish flew aboard, which was given to the captain, as he was suffering most for want of nourishment.

On the forty first day, Neal Turner, an invalid passenger, who had a severe abscess in the leg, gave up discouraged, and lay down on the bottom of the boat. The rest of the party were in good spirits but weak, expecting to see land in four or five days. There was no grumbling nor discension.

On the forty third day out, at 11 A M, the cry of "land ho!" was given, and the lofty summit of Mauna Loa greeted the famished voyagers. The land was sighted a day or two sooner than they expected. On nearing it, a flag was waved on a pole, which was seen by those on shore, but it was supposed to be a fishing party. When approaching near the breakers, off Laupahoehoe, two natives came off to the boat, and on finding the destitute condition of the crew climbed into it, shook hands with every one, saying "how do you do," took the oars and brought the boat safely to the beach

None of the party were able to stand up, and on trying to do so fell over perfectly helpless and unable as infants to walk alone The natives kowaded around, women vieing with the men, took them up in their arms and carried them all ashore to the house of Mr. Jones, Pulu Agent of J. C. Kung & Co., who received them with the greatest kindness. The natives brought all kinds of fruit and vegetables, such as potatoes, bananas, cocoanuts, etc, for the starving men, but Mr. J. deeming it not prudent for them to eat these, made some tea and broth, and nursed them with the zeal of a Florence Nightingale. Next morning they were allowed to eat a little more freely, but still with great caution, their host providing them more at each subsequent meal

Word having been sent to Hilo, the American Consul there, Capt. J Worth, sent three boats and brought the sailors to that port. Capt Mitchell and the Messrs Turgason preferred to remain at Laupahoehoe till they gained more strength. At Hilo, the Consul provided for all their necessities and bestowed much care on them.

The whole party in the long boat reached land safely, after having been forty three days at sea on short allowance part of the time and less allowance most of the voyage What is more remarkable, there was no sickness, nor any of the diseases which is so often the accompaniment of persons kept in a starving condition for so long a time.

LETTER FROM MADAM ANNA BISHOP—Gray, the music publisher in San Francisco, has received the following from Madam Bishop, the best evidence of her safety,

GUAM, MARINA ISLANDS, May 7, 1866.

You will be shocked to learn that we have been wrecked on Wake Island, on the 5th of March, and lost all. We were three weeks on the uninhabited Island. No water, and had to wait three days before we could get any from the ship We had no clothing but what we stood in up to arriving on the Island. The Governor and inhabitants have been most kind, and furnished us with a few materials to make up a little clothing. They have no stores here. We came, 21 of us, in an open boat 1,400 miles How we wished it was to San Francisco! A perfect miracle our safe passage to this place. The Captain of the Labelle left at the same time we did from Wake Island, in a small boat, with four of his men and three Chinese, but up to this time we have not heard of them We are here a month to-day. The Governor has sent a schooner to Wake Island for the specie saved from the wreck, and we have to wait its return to take us to Manilla, where we hope to commence operations Van Reed and the Japanese are allowed to go with this to Hongkong

You cannot imagine how we suffered all one night, from 9 o'clock P. M., till 8 A. M., thinking every moment would be our last, but the Almighty was watchful over us, poor sinners.

Mr. Schultz, Mr Lacelles and Maria are with us Truly, yours, ANNA BISHOP SCHULTZ
